

Prem Rawat Foundation to Help Hurricane Victims in Puerto Rico

The Prem Rawat Foundation (TPRF) will make a $20,000 grant to help victims of Hurricane Maria in Puerto Rico. The intense storm, coming on the heels of Hurricane Irma, has triggered a severe humanitarian crisis, causing hardships for nearly all of the island's 3.4 million residents. Electricity, potable water, food, medicine, and other critical supplies are in short supply. Recovery is sure to take many months to come, as 80 percent of agricultural crops were wiped out and the economy is in shambles.

To help hurricane victims in Puerto Rico, donate here.

Your support will add to the amount TPRF can contribute to help those on the island who need it the most.

“The needs in Puerto Rico are so great, but so is our power to make a difference. We are deeply appreciative to all of the donors who put TPRF in a strong position to help people there during these trying times,” says TPRF Board Chair Linda Pascotto.

